Introduction: Representing Non-citizen Defendants in Pennsylvania

Purpose of the Chart: Under the recent decision of the Supreme Court in Padilla v. Kentucky, 599 U.S. __ (2010), the Sixth Amendment requires defense counsel to provide immigration advice to defendants regarding the deportation consequences of pending criminal charges. The purpose of this guide is to provide an introductory tool for criminal defense attorneys to assist in navigating the complex field of immigration law, and to aide attorneys in complying with their constitutional and ethical obligations by offering a starting point for analysis. What this guide does NOT intend to do is to replace the need for individual research in each case that takes into account the particularities of each client's situation. Competent advice about the best criminal disposition in an individual noncitizen defendant's case will depend on that individual's prior criminal record, his or her immigration status, the status of immediate relatives and a number of other factors. This guide does not purport to provide legal advice or to give an opinion as to the immigration consequences that might result from a criminal disposition in a particular case.

For practice advisories and developments in the law following Padilla, please visit www.defendingimmigrants.org.

Note to Immigration Attorneys on Using the Chart. This chart was primarily written for criminal defense attorneys. The conclusions in each category represent a conservative view of the law, meant to guide criminal defense counsel away from potentially dangerous options and toward safer ones. Thus immigration counsel should not rely on the conclusions in the chart in deciding whether to pursue defense against removal. An offense may be listed as a "probably" as an aggravated felony or other adverse category here even if there are strong arguments to the contrary that might prevail in immigration proceedings. We have included a column of suggestions for immigration counsel consisting of ideas for arguments against a finding of deportability or inadmissibility for certain statutes. Many of our ideas are untested and this column does not constitute legal advice.

Sending comments about the Chart: Contact us if you disagree with an analysis, see a relevant new case, want to suggest other offenses to be analyzed or to propose other alternate "safer" pleas, or want to say how the chart works for you or how it could be improved. Send email to immigration@Philadefender.org. This address will not answer legal questions.

The authors would like to thank Benita Jain, Isaac Wheeler and the entire Defending Immigrants Partnership for their help, mentorship and support in this project. Additionally we would like to thank Katherine Brady and Jorge Baron for their permission to liberally borrow their materials for the introductory portion of this chart. We would also like to thank Elisa Cannizzaro, a second year law student at Villanova University for her valuable research assistance.

DISPELLING SOME DANGEROUS MYTHS REGARDING IMMIGRATION CONSEQUENCES OF CRIMINAL CONVICTIONS

Defense attorneys should understand that the intersection of federal immigration law and Pennsylvania criminal law often leads to results that are counterintuitive. The following are some of the misconceptions about this area of the law most often heard from defense practitioners. The primary lesson to be conveyed is that the immigration consequences of a criminal conviction must be considered in every case involving a defendant who is not a U.S. citizen.

× MYTH: Immigration consequences are only an issue if the person is here “illegally.”

WRONG. Criminal charges or convictions may lead to deportation for any individual who is not a citizen of the United States. A noncitizen defendant could face immigration consequences even if he or she has been in this country since an early age, has been a lawful permanent resident (i.e. “green-card” holder), is married to a United States citizen or has citizen children, has assimilated completely into our society and has never had a prior criminal conviction. The defendant’s status may impact what kind of consequences he or she faces, but all noncitizens could face deportation as long as they have not naturalized.

× MYTH: Immigration consequences are only an issue if the conviction is a felony.

WRONG. Even the most drastic of immigration consequences can result from convictions that are only misdemeanors under Pennsylvania law. Indeed, many misdemeanor convictions under Pennsylvania law could be classified as “aggravated felonies” under immigration law (this is the case even though the offenses were neither “aggravated” nor “felonies”). Of course, the fact that an offense is a felony is often relevant to the potential immigration consequences, and certain felony convictions are more likely to have drastic consequences, but misdemeanors are in no way outside the scope of immigration law.

× MYTH: There will be no immigration consequences if the defendant does not serve time.

× MYTH: There will be no immigration consequences if the defendant serves only a year or less.

× MYTH: There will be no immigration consequences if the sentence is suspended.

WRONG, WRONG, and WRONG. The term of imprisonment imposed for a particular conviction may be important in determining the immigration consequences of the conviction, but it also may not be relevant at all. In some circumstances, the length of a term of imprisonment will be critically important: for instance, some convictions will qualify as an “aggravated felony” only if a sentence of 1 year OR more is imposed. (Under Pennsylvania sentencing, it is the maximum term of imprisonment imposed that is used to determine whether a sentence is 1 year or more; see below for more information on sentencing). Remember, however, that the length of the sentence is relevant only in some cases. In many situations, it will not matter that the defendant was not sentenced to any jail time: the mere fact of conviction will trigger immigration consequences regardless of sentence.

× MYTH: If the person is here “illegally,” it doesn’t matter what they’re convicted of since they’ll get deported anyway.

WRONG. A noncitizen without legal status at a particular point could be eligible to obtain lawful immigration status in a number of different ways. Many, if not most, of those avenues could be foreclosed by certain types of criminal convictions. There are also many discretionary waivers of deportation for which a noncitizen could qualify, but again many of these waivers are not available to those convicted of certain offenses. But even if a person will not be able to avoid deportation in the end, criminal convictions can have harsh additional consequences. For instance, most noncitizens being deported because of a criminal conviction will face mandatory detention pending their removal. Many may be ineligible for a type of relief called "voluntary departure," which allows them to depart the country on their own and therefore avoid additional sanctions. Finally, if an undocumented individual reenters the country after being deported, she or he may face federal criminal charges if they are caught by immigration authorities, and the potential sentences they would face are much longer if they were deported subsequent to certain types of criminal convictions. For all of these reasons, immigration consequences comprise an issue that is important to every noncitizen defendant.

- × MYTH: The record in this particular case will be sealed or expunged, so there won't be any immigration consequences.

WRONG. Immigration practitioners have found that nothing is "sealed" for purposes of immigration law. Applicants for immigration benefits are often required to provide information for all prior arrests and convictions. Defense attorneys are therefore advised to assume that all criminal records will be available to immigration authorities and could trigger immigration consequences—regardless of the fact that those records are considered "sealed" as a matter of state law.

- × MYTH: This issue is just too complicated and there's nothing I can really do about it.
- × MYTH: My clients just want to avoid serving time and they won't care about the immigration consequences.

WRONG. This area of the law is undoubtedly complex and the lines that are drawn by immigration law do not always make intuitive sense. However, there are often very simple things that a defense attorney can do to improve a client's chances in immigration court if he or she is alert to particularly dangerous dispositions. In addition, it is certainly the case that many criminal defendants will be more concerned about the more imminent prospect of serving time (or getting out of jail) than they will be about the future immigration consequences. Defense attorneys should recognize, however, that many noncitizens may be operating under the erroneous assumption that a particular conviction will not affect their immigration status: for instance, a defendant may think that because he is a "permanent" resident he cannot be deported. The ultimate decision about how to proceed is of course up to the client, but defense attorneys have a constitutional and professional obligation to ensure that the client is properly informed. Defense attorneys should keep in mind that the decisions made during the criminal proceedings will be crucial in framing any subsequent immigration proceedings. Clients should be made aware that there may be little an immigration attorney can do down the line if immigration consequences are not addressed during the criminal proceeding.

WHAT ARE THE CATEGORIES OF CRIMES THAT CAN LEAD TO IMMIGRATION CONSEQUENCES?

It is important to note that any criminal conviction—and in some cases, criminal conduct, even if it does not lead to a conviction—could have consequences for the immigration status of a noncitizen. The reason is that many decisions as to whether to grant a particular immigration benefit—including naturalization—are left to the discretion of federal immigration authorities. And criminal conduct or a criminal conviction of any kind can be taken into account by those authorities in making discretionary determinations.

Certain classes of convictions, however, trigger automatic provisions of immigration law which render a noncitizen deportable (or “removable”). Many of those same classes of convictions will make a noncitizen ineligible for discretionary waivers or other forms of relief that may allow them to stay in the country even if they are considered deportable. The following is a brief overview of these categories:

Aggravated Felony (AF):

For lawful permanent residents and individuals seeking asylum, this will be the worst category of criminal offenses for immigration purposes. Its name is misleading because the offense need be neither “aggravated” (as that term may be commonly understood) nor a “felony” under state law for it to be an “aggravated felony.” The list of what this category includes is long, but the most common offenses charged as aggravated felonies are: murder, rape, sexual abuse of a minor, drug-trafficking crimes (which may include certain simple drug possessions offenses), and certain subcategories of crimes which meet a certain threshold: for example “crimes of violence,” “burglary” or “theft offenses” for which a sentence of 1 year OR more is imposed, or “fraud” offenses in which the loss to the victim exceeds $10,000. When a noncitizen’s conviction falls into this category, the consequences are severe: the individual will face mandatory detention and almost certain deportation and will be ineligible for virtually all forms of relief. In addition, if the noncitizen returns illegally to the United States, he or she will face criminal penalties of up to 20 years in federal prison.

Controlled Substances Offenses (CS):

This is another category that will result in drastic immigration consequences for most noncitizens. This category encompasses offenses “relating to” a controlled substance as defined by federal law, and it therefore encompasses simple possession and distribution offenses involving substances covered by federal drug schedules (if the substance is regulated only by the state, it is not covered). The CSO category probably also covers offenses like possession of drug paraphernalia. A conviction in this category often renders undocumented immigrants ineligible to apply for legal status (and therefore subjects them to mandatory deportation).

Crimes Involving Moral Turpitude (CMT):

A broad category of criminal offenses, this category is as vague as its title suggests. One often feels that the courts’ take on “moral turpitude” is the same as their take on “obscenity”: they know it when they see it. However, there is considerable case law guiding this analysis. Generally, the following types of crimes are found to be CMTs: offenses involving theft or an intent to defraud; offenses involving intent to cause bodily harm, or offenses involving recklessness that result in serious bodily harm; and most offenses involving sexual conduct. CMTs do not render a noncitizen removable in every case—the impact of a CMT will depend on the immigration status, prior criminal record, and actual and potential sentence for the offense.

Other categories:

Other categories of offenses are more specific: crimes of domestic violence, crimes against children, firearm offenses, etc... Many of these categories of offenses will have their greatest negative impact on noncitizens who have been lawfully admitted to the country, especially lawful permanent residents (LPRs). However, unlike Aggravated Felonies, these categories of offenses will often (but not always) preserve a lawful permanent resident's eligibility for discretionary waivers of deportation.

REPRESENTATION DO'S AND DON'TS

What are the things to AVOID when representing a noncitizen defendant?

As noted earlier, a comprehensive assessment of what offenses should be avoided in a particular case requires knowledge of the individual's past criminal history, his or her immigration status, and many other factors regarding his family circumstances and the specifics of the offense. However, recognizing that each case will present its own circumstances, criminal defense attorneys should keep in mind the following general guidance:

- ✓ Avoid a “conviction” whenever possible: Although even just some forms of criminal-related conduct can have immigration consequences, most immigration issues arise after a conviction. Obviously, obtaining an outright dismissal or a nolle prosequi would be ideal. However, Pennsylvania also provides a number of pre-trial diversion programs, some of which do not require an admission of guilt or a “no contest” plea and which lead to dispositions that would not be considered “convictions” for immigration purposes. The best option in Pennsylvania is the Accelerated Rehabilitative Disposition (ARD) program, which does not require an admission or finding of guilt and which is not considered a conviction for immigration purposes. Defense attorneys should note, however, that some of Pennsylvania's pretrial diversion programs do require an admission of guilt. Therefore these programs will NOT prevent immigration consequences, such as the Section 17 and 18 drug treatment programs, which are considered convictions for immigration purposes. For cases involving juveniles, delinquency adjudications in Pennsylvania are not considered convictions, however remember there are certain types of conduct, particularly if it is related to controlled substances, which may have independent immigration consequences.
- ✓ Avoid an “Aggravated Felony”: In most situations, and especially when a defendant is a lawful permanent resident (LPR) (also known as a “green-card holder”), a conviction for an aggravated felony will have the worst immigration consequences. Practitioners should be particularly careful with the subcategories of “aggravated felony” that hinge on sentence or amount of loss: here, simple changes to a plea agreement can make huge differences.
- ✓ Avoid a “Controlled Substance Offense”: Virtually all drug offenses will result in harsh immigration consequences for most noncitizens. The only exception is a first offense for simple possession of 30 grams or less of marijuana (30g = 1.05 ounces), which will not trigger deportability for a lawful permanent resident (but which may affect ability to return from travel abroad). Other controlled substance offenses will make a lawful permanent resident deportable, and some will bar relief from deportation. Most undocumented immigrants with a drug offense will be barred from getting legal status, unless the offense is for simple possession of 30 grams or less of marijuana.
- ✓ Avoid “Crimes of Domestic Violence,” “Firearm Offenses,” and others: these categories have particularly serious consequences for lawful permanent residents (LPRs). Other kinds of convictions to be avoided in this area are: crimes of stalking, crimes against children, and violations of protective orders.
- ✓ Avoid a “Crime Involving Moral Turpitude” (CMT): Depending on the individual's status and prior criminal history, this category may make the person removable; however, it may leave open more avenues for relief than would a conviction for an aggravated felony. If a CMT cannot be avoided completely, but the defendant does not have any prior convictions for an offense that would be considered a CMT, a defense attorney should consider the following options:

- If the defendant is a Lawful Permanent Resident (LPR), but has had this status for less than five years: avoid conviction for a CMT for which a sentence of more than one year may be imposed (i.e. first and second degree misdemeanors and all felonies)
- If the defendant is undocumented: avoid a conviction for a CMT with a maximum possible sentence of more than one year (i.e., avoid all second and third degree misdemeanors and felonies) and obtain a maximum sentence imposed of six months or less. This should preserve the client's eligibility for the "petty offense exception" if they are otherwise eligible to apply for lawful status.

What are the things to DO when representing a noncitizen defendant?

- ✓ Ask detailed questions about client's current immigration status: This information is essential to an attorney's ability to provide specific and accurate immigration advice. We have provided a sample intake form in this guide, however additional information may be needed depending on the details of a particular client's situation.
- ✓ Conduct independent research into the immigration consequences of pending charges: This guide offers a starting point for analysis, but updated research into recent case law that takes into account the individual details of a client's situation and defense priorities is always necessary.
- ✓ Communicate your specific, detailed conclusions regarding the immigration consequences of pending charges to your client: Under Padilla v. Kentucky, it is an attorney's constitutional obligation to advise a noncitizen client of the deportation consequences of their criminal charges.
- ✓ Urge client to consider pre-trial diversion programs, if applicable: In many situations, if an outright dismissal is not possible, a pre-trial diversion program like ARD that avoids a "conviction" for immigration purposes will be the best possible outcome for a defendant. Although these programs impose significant requirements, a client should be advised of the benefits in the immigration context.
- ✓ Pay careful attention to crafting a plea agreement: In many situations, small changes to how the plea agreement is crafted can have a huge impact on the consequences stemming from the conviction. For instance:
 - If the conviction is one which could constitute an aggravated felony if a sentence of 1 year or more is imposed, a plea agreement with a sentence (whether suspended or to be served) of 364 days instead of 1 year may well make the difference between an essentially permanent deportation and possibly no immigration consequences at all.
 - Consider crafting pleas to charges that do not trigger immigration consequences, or that trigger less serious categories (for instance, it is often better to plea to a CMT than to plea to an aggravated felony).

“Sentence Imposed” in Pennsylvania

Definition of “sentence imposed” for immigration purposes. The immigration statute defines sentence imposed as the “period of incarceration or confinement ordered by a court of law, regardless of suspension of the imposition or execution of that imprisonment in whole or in part.”

- Under Pennsylvania's minimum/maximum sentencing structure the “sentence imposed” for immigration purposes is the maximum sentenced imposed. Example: 11 ½ to 23 months is a sentence of one year or more. A sentence of 5 1/2 to 11 months is not.
- This language refers to the sentence actually imposed, not to the potential sentence.
- It does not include the period of probation, although the additional sentence imposed by a court after a probation or parole violation is included within the “sentence imposed.”
- It includes the entire sentence imposed even if the client has been immediately paroled and never actually served any period of incarceration.

How to get a sentence of less than one year. Often counsel can avoid having an offense classed as an aggravated felony by creative plea bargaining. Some (but not all) aggravated felony grounds are only triggered by a sentence of a year or more. For such offenses, the key is to avoid any one count from being punished by a sentence of one year or more. If needed, counsel can still negotiate significant jail time for the defendant. If immigration concerns are important, counsel might:

- bargain for the maximum sentence being less than one year on a single count;
- plead to two or more counts, with less than a one year sentence imposed for each, to be served consecutively;
- plead to an additional or substitute offense that does not have immigration consequences, and take the jail time on that;
- waive credit for time already served or prospective “good time” credits and persuade the judge to take this into consideration in imposing a shorter official sentence, that will result in the same amount of time actually incarcerated as under the originally proposed sentence;
- rather than take a probation violation that adds time to the sentence for the original conviction, ask for a new conviction (one without immigration consequences) and take the time on the new count.

Vacated sentences: Vacating a sentence nunc pro tunc and imposing a revised sentence of less than 365 days will prevent some convictions from being considered aggravated felonies. This will only help avoid an aggravated felony that is triggered by a one year sentence. Remember that many aggravated felony categories do not have any sentence requirement.

The petty offense exception. The above definition of “sentence imposed” also applies to persons attempting to qualify for the “petty offense” exception to the moral turpitude ground of inadmissibility, which holds that a person who has committed only one crime involving moral turpitude is not inadmissible if the offense has a maximum possible sentence of one year or less and a sentence imposed of six months or less. See 8 USC § 1182(a)(2)(A)(ii)(II).

Applicability of this Guide outside the Third Circuit and the impact of Silva Trevino

This chart was written with reference to Third Circuit case law. This is because most decisions that discuss the consequences of Pennsylvania crimes arose in the Third Circuit, and most persons who are convicted of crimes in Pennsylvania and are placed in immigration proceedings will remain in the Third Circuit. However, a person may have their removal proceedings brought in another jurisdiction if the person is detained in another Circuit, if they are taken into custody at a port of entry, if they move out of the Third Circuit or they file an immigration application in another area. Should your client have his/her immigration case heard outside the Third Circuit, our analysis may not be applicable.

Our suggestions regarding crimes involving moral turpitude is particularly limited in its usefulness to cases arising in the Third Circuit due to former Attorney General Mukasey's decision in Matter of Silva-Trevino, 24 I. & N. Dec. 687 (A.G. November 7, 2008). Silva Trevino attempts to re-write the analysis for the category of crimes involving moral turpitude under federal immigration law. The new analysis has disastrous consequences for noncitizens, as it proposes a broader definition of the category, dramatically expands the type of evidence admissible to show the nature of a conviction and may even shift the burden of proof to noncitizens in deportation proceedings.

Following the decision in Silva Trevino, the Third Circuit rejected the Attorney General's new analysis in Jean Louis v. Holder, 582 F.3d 462 (3d Cir. 2009). With sharp criticism for the Attorney General's impermissible reading of the federal statute and for the secretive manner in which Silva Trevino was issued, the Court held that it would continue to follow its previous decisions regarding crimes involving moral turpitude and would not apply the Attorney General's new opinion.

The Third Circuit is the first and only Circuit Court of Appeals to issue an opinion regarding Silva Trevino. The decision itself is also being challenged, as a motion for reconsideration is currently pending with the current Attorney General Holder. There are numerous reasons to believe that other jurisdictions will follow this decision, however, until new decisions have been issued, immigration courts outside the Third Circuit are still following Silva Trevino. The analysis in this chart regarding crimes involving moral turpitude therefore only pertains to cases arising in the Third Circuit.

For an in-depth discussion of the decision in Silva Trevino and advice for immigration and criminal defense practitioners, see Norton Tooby and Dan Kesselbrenner, "Living under Silva Trevino," available at www.nationalimmigrationproject.org and Isaac Wheeler and Heidi Altman, "Recent Developments in the Categorical Approach: Tips for Criminal Defense Lawyers Representing Immigrant Clients," at www.immigrantdefenseproject.org.

18 Pa. C.S. § 2702(a)(3), (a)(4), (a)(5), (a)(6) Aggravated Assault	Yes, crime of violence AF if term of imprisonment of one year or more is imposed if convicted under (a)(4) or (a)(6). Possible crime of violence AF if convicted under (a)(3) or (a)(5).	Yes if convicted under (a)(3),(4) and (5). Probably under (a)(6).	CODV: Yes if against current or former spouse, person with whom the defendant is currently co-habiting co-habited with or co-parent with.	Tip for criminal attorneys: Keep term of imprisonment to 364 days or less to avoid AF.
18 Pa. C.S. § 2702(a)(7) Aggravated Assault	Probably AF as crime of violence if term of imprisonment of one year or more is imposed.	Probably.	CODV: Yes if against current or former spouse, person with whom the defendant is currently co-habiting co-habited with or co-parent with.	Tip for criminal attorneys: Keep term of imprisonment to 364 days or less to avoid AF. Tip for immigration attorneys: Argument against AF could be that crime could be strict liability offense, so would not rise to the level of intent necessary for an AF or a CMT.
18 Pa. C.S. § 2705 Recklessly Endangering Another Person	No. Not a crime of violence under Singh v. Gonzales , 432 F.3d 533 (2006).	Probably. See Knapik v. Ashcroft , 384 F.3d 84 (3d Cir. 2004) (New York REAP is a CMT); In Re: Arben Braimillari ,	CODV: no because not a crime of violence.	Tip for criminal attorneys: A plea to attempted REAP may avoid CMT under Knapik v. Ashcroft , 384 F.3d 84 (3d Cir. 2004). Not clear if this is possible plea in PA.

Tip for criminal attorneys: Keep term of imprisonment to 364 days or less to avoid AF. Harassment may be a safer alternative. Tip for immigration attorneys: Bovkun v. 18 Pa. C.S. § 3503(b.1) Simple Trespass	No. While this offense may qualify as a crime of violence, it is a summary offense and only punishable by up to 90 days so it cannot be an aggravated felony. Tips for criminal attorneys: Section (b.1)(1)(iii) for attempted defacement of property is a safer option. Tip for immigration attorneys: If conviction is for property defacement or damage, possible argument against CMT that crime is similar to criminal mischief and should not be CMT. See criminal mischief analysis under §3304.
Robbery
18 Pa.C.S. § 3701 Robbery	Yes, theft or attempted theft AF if term of imprisonment of one year or more is imposed. Also a possible AF as a crime of violence if a term of imprisonment of one	Yes.	CODV: If it is a crime of violence, yes if against current or former spouse, person with whom the defendant is currently co-habiting co-habited with or co-parent with. No.	Tips for criminal attorneys: Keep term of imprisonment to 364 days or less to avoid AF. Tip for immigration attorneys: For argument against CMT, see Matter of Serna , 20 I&N Dec. 579 (BIA 1992) (possession of false immigration document not a CMT because no requirement of an intent to defraud.)

If possible, plead specifically to photographing simple nudity. Tip for immigration attorneys: Argument against child pornography AF is that PA statute is broader than federal statute because it includes photographs of simple nudity, which the federal statute does not.

Domestic Violence, Protection Orders and Child Support
23 Pa.C.S. § 6114 Contempt for violation of protection order	No.	Probably CMT. Matter of Sharp , 2002 WL 32149034 (BIA Oct. 7, 2002) (citing a PA case discussing this offense).	Violator of Protective Order: Probably.	Tip for criminal attorneys: To preserve possible argument against CODV offense, keep record of conviction clear of any reference to threats, repeated harassment, or bodily injury and attempt to plead specifically to violating portion of order that does not involve physical abuse of victim, threats of violence, repeated harassment or injury, such as eviction or simple contact. If this is not possible, keep record silent as to portion of order violated. Safer alternative pleas: --Harassment --Simple Assault

				Tip for immigration attorneys: Possible argument against CODV is that this is not a deportable offense unless a portion of the order was violated that involved threats of violence, repeated harassment or bodily injury. Beware: unpublished BIA decisions go both ways.

35 Pa.C.S. § 780-113(31) Marijuana Offenses - Possession or distribution, but not sale, of a small amount of marijuana (30 grams or less of marijuana or 8 grams of hashish).	No.	Simple possession: No Delivery but not for sale: Probably.	Controlled substance: Yes. Exception: A first offense for possession of less than 30 grams of marijuana would not qualify as grounds for deportation for lawful permanent residents, but the second and subsequent offenses would.
35 Pa.C.S. § 780-113(35) Possession with intent to distribute a noncontrolled substance	No.	No.	Controlled substance: No.	Tip for immigration attorneys: It is clear from the language of the statute that this is not "relating to" a controlled substance" because all convictions under this statute do not, by definition, involve controlled substances.
Traffic Offenses
75 Pa. C.S § 1543 Driving While Suspended	No.	No. However if DUI conviction involves driving on suspended license see DUI below.	No.

3732 Homicide by Vehicle	269 F.3d 162 (3d Cir. 2001).			includes negligent conduct, which should not qualify as an AF or CMT.
75 Pa. C.S. § 3735 Aggravated Assault by DUI	No. See Leocal v Ashcroft , 125 U.S. 377 (2004). Not a crime of violence because of specified negligent intent.	No.	Controlled substance: Yes if record specifies controlled substance.	Tip for criminal attorneys: Keep record clean of any substance other than alcohol to avoid controlled substance offense. Tip for immigration attorneys: Argument against CMT is that negligence is not enough for a CMT. See Partyka v. Attorney General , 417 F.3d 408 (3d Cir. 2005) (negligent assault not a CMT). BEWARE: If license revoked or suspended, see below.
75 Pa. C.S. § 3802 Driving While Under the Influence of Alcohol or controlled Substance	No.	Probably not unless record of conviction establishes circumstances such as knowing license suspended or revoked due to prior DUI. See Matter of Lopez-Meza , 22 I&N Dec. 1188 (BIA 1999).	Controlled substance: Yes if record specifies controlled substance.	Tip for criminal attorneys: Keep record clear of any mention of substances other than alcohol to avoid CS.
