

Selected Immigration Consequences of Certain Massachusetts Offenses

Dan Kesselbrenner and Wendy Wayne on Behalf of the Defending Immigrants Partnership*

INTRODUCTION

1. USING THE CHART. The chart analyzes the potential deportability that may flow from conviction of selected Massachusetts offenses. For certain offenses, it offers suggestions about how to reduce the likelihood of the potential consequences. Note that additional immigration consequences not listed here may arise from these offenses, such as the denial of naturalization, inadmissibility, or the denial of discretionary relief. The chart is organized numerically by statute. The “Key Concepts” box below describes the immigration significance of certain state dispositions, sentences, and crime classifications.
2. SENDING COMMENTS ABOUT THE CHART. Please contact us if you disagree with an analysis, see a relevant new case, want to suggest other offenses for us to discuss, or want to propose other alternate “safer” pleas, want to suggest improvements, or have general comments. Please send your comments to dan@nationalimmigrationproject.org.
3. DISCLAIMER AND NOTE TO USERS. Immigration consequences of crimes are a complex, unpredictable, and constantly changing area of law where there are few guarantees. Practitioners should use this chart as a starting point rather than as a substitute for legal research. For a more detailed analysis of offenses and arguments, see Kesselbrenner and Rosenberg, Immigration Law and Crimes available (available at: http://west.thomson.com/store/product.asp?product_id=13514773) and Massachusetts Criminal Practice, ch. 42, Blumenson, Fisher, Kanstroom, eds., Lexis 2003.

KEY CONCEPTS - Immigration Significance of Certain State Dispositions, Sentences, & Crime Classifications

- * Avoid an aggravated felony (AF) conviction if at all possible. See 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(43) for definition. A noncitizen with an AF conviction, even a longtime legal permanent resident, will be held in mandatory detention, has virtually no defense or relief to deportation, and will be barred from returning to the U.S. for life. Crimes of violence, theft offenses, and certain other categories of offenses require a conviction AND a sentence of one year or more to constitute an AF. Other categories of offenses, such as “drug trafficking,” murder, rape, sexual abuse of a minor, and fraud over $10,000 require only a conviction to constitute an AF.
- * The definition of a “conviction” for immigration purposes is at 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(48)(A). A “continued without a finding” (CWO) is considered a conviction under this definition. Pre-trial probation is not. A “guilty filed” disposition is not considered a conviction if it is not in exchange for any prior completed conditions. See Griffiths v. INS, 243 F.3d 45 (1st Cir. 2001). Dispositions of eligible offenses under MGL c.276, §55 (accord and satisfaction) and MGL c.277, §70C would not be treated as convictions.
- * Pursuant to 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(48)(B), a “sentence” is any period of incarceration ordered by the court which is imposed or suspended in whole or in part. A term of probation is not relevant to the length of the sentence (Example 1, “6 months suspended for 18 months” is considered a 6-month sentence; Example 2, “18 months, 6 months to serve, balanced suspended for 2 years” is considered an 18-month sentence).
- * If a defendant pleads to multiple counts of the same offense, immigration authorities treat the sentence for each count separately. A theft offense with a sentence of 1 year or more is an aggravated felony. A noncitizen defendant who receives 11 months for 3 counts of theft has not been convicted of an aggravated felony because the defendant did not receive a year’s sentence for any of the theft convictions.
- * The prohibition against ex post facto laws does not apply to immigration proceedings.

MGL c.94C,§34	Possession of a controlled substance	No, if 1st offense. Maybe, if prior drug conviction. Probably, if prosecuted as subsequent offense.	No	Yes, is both a deportable and inadmissible offense. There is an exception to deportability for a single conviction of possessing 30g or less of marijuana.	For undocumented immigrants, may not be any available relief. Not deportable offense if record does not identify the drug. Avoid conviction, especially if government prosecuting as subsequent offense.
MGL c.94C,§32-32E	Trafficking, distribution, possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance	Yes, except for slight possibility that possession with intent to distribute class E under MGL c.94C,§32D(a) might not be an aggravated felony.	Probably	Yes, is deportable offense under controlled substance ground of deportability ⁷ and inadmissible offense under controlled substance ground of inadmissibility. ⁸	Reduce to straight possession. Avoid conviction.
MGL c.94C,§35	Presence where heroin kept	No	No	Yes, is deportable offense under controlled substance ground of deportability ⁹ and inadmissible offense under controlled substance ground of inadmissibility. ¹⁰	This offense is a misdemeanor under both federal and state classification schemes and does not involve the distribution of a controlled substance so a conviction under this offense is a good way to avoid an aggravated felony.

MGL c.265,§13	Manslaughter (involuntary)	Probably a crime of violence if sentence of 1 year or more, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(F). ¹²	Possibly		If possible, plead to committing an unintentional killing during the commission of a battery instead of during wanton or reckless conduct.
MGL c.265,§13A(a)	Assault	Probably a crime of violence if sentence of 1 year or more, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(F). ¹³	No	If victim is family member, may be deportable offense for “crime of domestic violence.”	Keep sentence less than a year. Keep record clear of any domestic relationship.

MGL c265§13A(b)	Aggravated assault and battery (serious injury pregnant or restraining order)	Probably, a crime of violence if sentence of 1 year or more, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(F).	Probably ¹⁵	If victim is family member, may be deportable offense for "crime of domestic violence."	Keep sentence less than a year. Keep record clear of any domestic relationship.
MGL c.265,§13B	Indecent assault and battery on a child under 14	Yes, sexual abuse of a minor aggravated felony under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(A).	Yes	Probably a deportable offense under child abuse ground of deportability. ¹⁶	Amend to simple assault and battery, but may still be deportable for child abuse. If amended, keep sentence less than a year.
MGL c.265,§13D	Assault and battery on a public official	Probably a crime of violence if sentence of 1 year or more, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(F).	Probably ¹⁷
MGL c.265,§13H	Indecent assault and battery on a person over 14 years old	Yes, crime of violence if sentence of 1 year or more, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(F). If victim is under 18, may be sexual abuse of a minor aggravated felony, regardless of sentence.	Yes		If victim is under 18, keep this out of the record of conviction. Keep sentence less than a year.

¹⁵ An offense that involves recklessness and serious bodily injury is a crime involving moral turpitude. Matter of Fualaau, 21 I. & N. Dec. 475 (BIA 1996). There is an argument that the mental state for this offense is less than recklessness. A domestic assault is a crime involving moral turpitude. Matter of Tran, 21 I. & N. Dec. 291 (BIA 1996).

MGL c.265,§13J	Assault and battery on a child	Probably a crime of violence if sentence of 1 year or more, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(F).	Probably ¹⁸	Probably a deportable offense under child abuse ground of deportability.	Keep sentence less than a year. Amend to simple assault and battery with no mention on record of domestic relationship or age of victim.
MGL c.265,§13L	Reckless endangerment to children	Possibly sexual abuse of minor aggravated felony pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(A), regardless of sentence and possibly a crime of violence pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(F) if the defendant receives a sentence of a year or more.	Possibly ¹⁹	Probably under child neglect or child abuse ground of deportability.	Avoid pleading to sexual abuse of a minor. If there is a factual basis for such a plea, plead to recklessly failing to take steps is the least likely to trigger adverse immigration consequences.
MGL c.265,§14	Mayhem	Probably a crime of violence if sentence of 1 year or more, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(F).	Yes		Although unlikely, try to keep sentence less than 1 year.

¹⁸ A likely extension of Matter of Tran, 21 I. & N. Dec. 291 (BIA 1996) (holding that a domestic assault is a crime involving moral turpitude because it constitutes a breach of the special relationship between a parent and child).

MGL c.265,§43(a)	Stalking	Probably a crime of violence if sentence of 1 year or more, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(43)(F).	Probably	Probably a deportable offense violence under 8 U.S.C. §1227(a)(2)(E)(i) if evidence in record that victim is covered under domestic violence laws.	Keep sentence to less than 1 year to avoid aggravated felony. Plead to stalking a non-protected victim to avoid deportability for domestic violence offense
MGL c.265,§43(b)	Stalking in violation of restraining order	Probably a crime of violence pursuant to 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(43)(F).	Probably	Yes. Deportability for domestic violence under 8 U.S.C. §1227(a)(2)(E)(ii).	Avoid conviction.
MGL c.209A,§7	Violation of restraining order	No	No	Yes. Deportability for domestic violence under 8 U.S.C. §1227(a)(2)(E)(ii).	If there is a factual basis for violating child visitation section of order it would preserve an argument for immigration court that violation does not render noncitizen deportable under the domestic violence ground of deportability.
